Description

Spigelia marilandica, commonly called Indian Pink, is a clump-forming, native perennial which occurs in moist woods and stream banks. Little Redhead' features upright, sturdy stems topped with bright red, tubular flowers with bright yellow interiors. Little Redhead' is a superior selection of the species. The main bloom period falls in early summer, with some sporadic reblooming possible into fall. Highly attractive to hummingbirds, and makes an excellent cut flower for fresh arrangements.
